Dear Sir / Madam,

Pearson Language Tests is a UK-based division of the British examination board Edexcel (a Pearson company) responsible for delivering the London Tests of English (LTE) internationally.

The LTE is a suite of proficiency exams designed to assess and accredit the English usage of speakers of other languages. They assess all four skills - reading, writing, listening and speaking. The grades are awarded as fail, pass, pass with merit or pass with distinction.

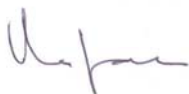

Students from over 40 countries have taken the LTE exams in the last three years.

We also want to draw your attention to the fact that the LTE certifications are accepted as proof of ability by a number of British universities and colleges including the London School of Economics and the University of York and are accredited in the United Kingdom by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA).

As we have recently begun registering candidates in India to sit the examinations, we are sending you an information pack on the Tests which includes a leaflet and a Handbook outlining the LTE syllabus. Sample papers, and the current list of universities accepting LTE, can be downloaded from our website: www.pearsonlanguageassessments.com.

Please give these facts adequate weight when assessing London Tests of English certificate holders for education, travel, migration or employment.

Yours faithfully,

Joseph Rospars
